The NDEB® has a responsibility to ensure the integrity of its examinations and operations as breaches can have significant repercussions to the profession of dentistry in Canada. An important part of that responsibility is protecting and enforcing the NDEB's intellectual property.

- The NDEB® owns documents, text, images, and other materials, including all content on its website, examinations and study materials, and materials concerning the NDEB® and its work ("Content").
- The NDEB® owns various words, phrases, names, designs, symbols and or logos that are protected as trademarks, service marks or trade names ("Marks").
- The Content and Marks are protected by law. The Content are for personal use only. Any other use of the Content or Marks is strictly prohibited unless you have prior written permission from an authorized NDEB® representative.
- Content and Marks may be subject to additional restrictions, including as set out in the NDEB® Website Terms of Use and specific copyright notices.
- Unauthorized use of the Content and Marks may violate copyright or trademark laws and could be subject to legal actions and damages. Further, if you are an examinee in any of the NDEB processes and you share Content with third parties, you may be denied standing in relation to your examination and the privilege of taking or repeating any further NDEB® examinations. A report may be made to relevant dental regulatory authorities and legal action may be taken against you.
